From Aug 2020, I filed several CCPA data portability requests to Facebook.

Facebook ignored more than 90% of them, sometimes pretending to comply by directing me to search forms.

Eventually, after posting these CCPA requests repeatedly, everywhere on Facebook, including to Mark Zuckerberg's feed, I got some attention, including some unwanted attention that led to my Facebook account being temporarily suspended (for allegations of "Community Standards").

Oct 7, Facebook acknowledged my CCPA data request and also refused to comply with the law, citing "serious violations of our terms" to "not to provide users with access to their data". I have their email dated Oct 7 from:
